

Bianca Easterly, PhD
Assistant Professor of Political Science

Bianca Easterly is an Assistant Professor of Political Science at Lamar University. Dr. Easterly attended the University of Illinois at Chicago, from which she received a BA as well as a Master of Public Administration (MPA). She spent several years working in both the public and private sectors including the Department of Veterans Affairs. She completed her graduate studies in May 2013 from the University of Houston earning both a MA and PhD in Political Science with concentrations in American politics, public policy, and public law. Her research broadly explores policy issues and subnational political institutions that enhance elite responsiveness to public opinion. Dr. Easterly teaches both undergraduate political science courses and graduate seminars in the Masters of Public Administration program.
